Introduction

The Ministry of Panchayati Raj (MoPR), GOI, of late has initiated a development strategy in the form of Gram Panchayat Development Plan (GPDP) to induce and promote planning and development process at grass root level. The success of this strategy however, is regarded to be dependent highly on comprehensive information base, which is up to date, accurate and near real time in nature.

Towards building such comprehensive information base systematically, ISRO has developed a web portal titled “Bhuvan Panchayat” under the project Space Based Information Support for Decentralized Planning (SIS-DP). There are five components in the portal namely; 1) base data on administrative boundaries (Village, GP, Block and District), Land Use Land Cover (LULC), drainage and water bodies, slope etc. at 1:10000 scale, 2) asset mapping numbering 281 types, 3) activity planning, 4) implementation and monitoring and 5) interactively report generation up to Gram Panchayat level. The Bhuvan Panchayat mobile application is capable of capturing the photograph and geographic location of all physical assets / structures of development along with the non-spatial characteristics.

While the initiative has come out to be powerful tool towards decentralised development process and e-governance, the knowledge and skill that are required for operationalisation of the digital tools are not with development functionaries for both being introduced newly. In order to fill the given knowledge and skill gap, with respect to GPDP the training programme titled “Orientation of Sr. Govt. officers & SIRD Faculties for application of Bhuvan Panchayat” is an initiative of the regional centre to achieve the following objectives.

Objectives

- To sensitize and orient the PRI members at state and District level and the officers from Rural Development Departments and SIRD and ETC faculty on the various aspects of Bhuvan Panchayat;
- To impart tools and techniques for effective planning, implementation and monitoring of GPDP through Bhuvan Panchayat application.
